Editorial

The summer walking season is upon us, hot days in the summer sunshine and long cool evenings. I suspect most of the group will be looking forward to their summer holidays, which I assume, will be walking up mountains and along high ridges. Certainly that is what the editor and his wife will be doing in the Picos de Europa. I wonder if you, like me, will notice a difference when you greet fellow walkers in Continental Europe; they always politely reply with the appropriate phrase. This is in stark contrast to same situation in Southern England where a polite greeting is frequently ignored.

Readers will have noticed in the Group Programme a MAYBAC walk. John Lay writes to say that MAYBAC was founded by Alan Blatchford in the sixties before he, together with Chris Steer, founded the LDWA in the 1970s. Any member of Surrey LDWA would be welcome at any of the events organised by MAYBAC and these can be found on their website www.MAYBAC.org.uk

Bramley Rambles

On a day made for walking—dry with hazy sunshine in the morning becoming brighter in the afternoon—no less than 15 members set off, on the 15th May, from the edge of the Chantry Woods led by that dynamic duo Molly Groundsell and Elizabeth Bryan. None of us knew where we were headed but that did not matter. We were happy to follow in their foot-steps. Initially we followed the River Wey and nearly reached Godalming and then, having turned off, we nearly reached Winkworth Arboretum before turning off again to nearly reach Hascombe. Next we turned towards Bramley along part of the route used for the Punchbowl and as it was getting on for lunch we reached the Jolly Farmer where we enjoyed a long wait before having an adequate lunch. After lunch we headed towards Chilworth from where we nearly reached St. Martha's but instead we found the sting in the tail, a sharp climb up to the shoulder of Chantry Woods from where we dropped down to the car park. It had been an enjoyable day out. Many thanks to Molly and Elizabeth.

A walk with a purpose (and even a view)

As most in the Surrey Group will know, a few years ago Keith Chesterton spent many hours on a detailed examination of the local maps and put together a list of the tops in Surrey greater than 150m above sea level, known as the Chestertons. Over the past year or so the Surrey Group, as part of their social walk programme, have been ascending these eminences. Such a walk was held on Sunday 23rd February with the intention of climbing the five that were in easy reach of Newlands Corner. So it was on that day that 12 intrepid explorers set out under the leadership of Keith to walk eastwards along the North Downs Way, with several diversions, to ascend Woodcote, 208m, Netley Park, 203m, and Hackhurst, 227m, respectively numbers 23, 25, and 20 on the list. The lofty heights of the North Downs had to be left for the depths of the valley in order to ascend the Green Sand Ridge to claim Longmore, 161m, and number 39 on the list. As this top is on private land, it was claimed by applying the rule of the nearest public right of way. Lunch was thankfully taken at Abinger Common, sitting out in the pub garden so pleasant was the weather. There followed a trek down to Shere and onwards and upwards to St. Martha's, 171m and number 35 on the list. Naturally the walk ended at Newlands Corner, which surprisingly is not a Chesterton being only 105m in height. Our thanks go to Keith not only for the original compilation but also for his leadership of the walk.

Virtual Reality

On the 14th March 12 members of the Surrey Group enjoyed a virtual mountaineering holiday. Gillian Bull lead us on a mountaineering holiday in the Tatras and the Pyrenees through the photographs she took while on a Holiday Fellowship Classic Walking holiday at Zakopane on the Polish-Slovakian border and at Barrege in the Central Pyrenees.

Zakopane, south of Cracow, was developed in the late nineteenth century as a spa town and is now a largely unspoilt holiday resort in the foothills of the Tatras. The famous mountain in this part of the Tatras is Giewont, 1894m, which, it is claimed, all Polish people must climb at least once in their lifetime. In fact, such is the popularity of the mountain that there is a one-way traffic system at the top! Two features of the footpaths in the Tatras are that they are incredibly steep and they are paved. The latter may not help on the descent but they certainly help on the ascent. A visit to Zakopane is not complete without a tourist visit to Cracow, a world heritage city, remarkably little damaged by the Second World War.

Barrege is a small town on the French side of the Central Pyrenees which, until recently, was a popular HF Classic Walking and Skiing centre. The nearest well-known spot is the magnificent Cirque de Gavarnie surmounted by the impressive gash in the border ridge known as the Breche de Roland. One of the beauties of this region is the change in scenery from the largely limestone ridge of the border mountains to the parallel granite ridge to the north with its delightful lakes reflecting the surrounding high mountains.

Punchbowl Perambulation

On the 3rd April the inviting odours of bacon sandwiches from the NT cafe on Gibbet Hill wafted past as 12 walkers, under the leadership of Peter Bell, gathered in the car park on a glorious spring morning. With no previous rainfall for nearly a month conditions were ideal for walking and we soon stopped to peel off our outer garments and reveal our summer walking attire. We headed north along the southern ridge of the Devil's Punch Bowl, one of the largest spring eroded valleys in Europe formed over 1000 years ago by a series of springs cutting and eroding the sandy beds of Greensand. Extensive tree felling had been undertaken so we had to tread warily along the path, although this did not prevent us admiring the beautiful views over the surrounding countryside. We soon headed west in the vicinity of Chart and past fields of well tended fruit trees and also fields of healthy looking lambs, although no one seemed to know what they were doing there. A descent was then made to the extensive sandy heathlands bordering Freshham Ponds. After a stiff climb to the Devil's Jump, where there were magnificent views across to the Hog's Back and Farnham, a suggestion from our leader for a two-mile extension to another view-point was met by stony silence. We then skirted Fresham Little Pond.

Lunch was taken at the Duke of Cumberland in Tilford where we were joined by a further member of the group who had tracked us down by following the planned route. The walk resumed with extensive views over Kettleberry Hill and Hankley Common and so on to the Devil Punch Bowl and our starting point at Gibbet Hill.

Afternoon tea was taken in the NT cafe and grateful thanks were extended to Peter Bell for a great day out.

Capel Village

Ten walkers assembled at Capel on the 6th April for a walk in the area west of Gatwick, an area little walked by the group. The morning was spent traversing undulating countryside to arrive at the pub at Ifield for lunch where the only food available was a full roast or a giant veggie Yorkshire pudding. Undaunted, the Surrey Group showed their true mettle and rose to the challenge consuming vast quantities of food.

After lunch a flat section saw us ducking under the wheels of incoming jets as we crossed a large field close to the start of Gatwick runway. This led us on to the only climb of the day, the precipitate south face of Norwood Hill to the trig. point at 97m. (Well the gentle slope felt precipitate whilst suffering from the effects of a giant Yorkshire pud!). The route from here took us through Newdigate and back to Capel.

Thank you Jon for a pleasant and interesting walk

March in the Park

On the 2nd March 15 members of the group set out from the car park at Virginia Water Station under the leadership of Gillian Bull for a walk in Windsor Great Park. However, the group had first to navigate their way through the opulent surroundings of the Wentworth Estate, home to celebrities as Bruce Forsyth and one other of different fame, General Pinochet. This was followed by a walk across the Golf course, well three actually, and fortunately for us there were no prestigious competitions taking place. Then it was into the 2,500 hectares of park land known as Windsor Great Park. The walk went over Smith's Lawn with its imposing statue of Prince Albert to lunch at the Sun Public House in Englefield Green. In the afternoon, the walk took the group to the bronze statue of George III on the Long Walk. From this vantage point Windsor Castle could be seen to the north, a busy Heathrow to the north-east and through binoculars the London Eye could be seen to the west. The Long Walk was originally laid out with a border of elm trees in 1680 and it now forms part of the Three Castles Path. Towards the end of the walk a stroll through Valley Gardens enabled the group to enjoy the early blossom on the rhododendrons. A pause was taken to admire the highly decorated Indian Totem Pole, a gift from the people of British Columbia to Queen Elizabeth II. Afternoon tea was taken at the cafe in Saville Gardens before the walk back through the Wentworth Estate to the car park in Virginia Water. Our thanks go to Gillian Bull for a very enjoyable day out in the park.

The Moonwalk

It is not the practise of LDWA members to do sponsored walks but there are always exceptions. So it was that Ann Sayer took part in the Moonwalk on May 10/11th, with about 11,000 women, and a few men, on a marathon raising money for breast cancer research. Her team was organised by Sylvia Steer and included Jill Green.

The walk started in Battersea Park at 11pm and went eastwards along the south bank of the river to Tower Bridge and back along the north bank to Battersea Park for the end of the half marathon. On again through Chelsea and Kensington and through Westminster and back along the embankment over Chelsea Bridge to Battersea Park for the finish in the morning with the birds singing under a cloudless sky.

Even overnight there were people about and some of them could not understand why all these women were walking through the night wearing black leggings or tracksters (and some with their bras worn outside their tops!)

Ann writes, that if ladies are thinking of entering next year the entries close at the end of February 2004.
